NARRATIVE SUMMARY

The battalion continued to operate from A-3 and Hill #28 in the 9th Marines AO in accordance with 9th Marines OP Plan 2-68. With the completion of major portions of the Dye-Marker project during the month of January greater emphasis was placed over the past month on both daylight and night operations. Enemy incoming artillery and mortar fires were moderate. Seventy-two mortar and 233 light and medium artillery rounds were received during the month of February resulting in only 1 wound of serious consequence. This was attributed primarily to the fortification efforts of the battalion during its early occupancy of the A-3 position.

February saw a definite step-up in ground contact. A total of 188 NVA were killed by elements of the battalion and 3 POW's were captured during February. Positive contact with the enemy was gained on 8 occasions, the most significant of which occurred on 7Feb68 when Company "K" contacted a battalion size unit dug in on an 800 meter front approximately 600 meters southeast of the junction of MSR 566 with Route #1. Contact was made during the early afternoon and heavy casualties were initially incurred by two platoons. Companies "L" and "M" were deployed from the battalion position to reinforce Company "K" and ground contact continued until a tank infantry attack the following morning drove the enemy from the primary pocket of resistance. The action accounted for 140 enemy KIA, several weapons and a large quantity of enemy equipment and supplies. Night ambushes were increased in strength from squad to platoon and in some cases company strength. The increased strength provided the "strong power" required to operate as far as 4,000 meters from the A-3 position at night. Three successful ambushes were triggered during the month accounted for 21 NVA KIA, 9 enemy weapons and 2 prisoners. Primary emphasis was placed on interdicting enemy night movement along north/south infiltration routes between A-2 and A-3. It is planned that the scope of night operations will be further accelerated during the following month.

A battalion operation across the southern boundary of the DMZ was conducted on 16Feb68 for the purpose of "reconnaissance in force" of grid 1575. Initial entry to the probable line of deployment was gained under the cover of darkness. Contact was gained a short time after first light and continued until early afternoon. Contact broken, the battalion continued in its mission without further incident.

On 26Feb68 the battalion assumed OICCN of A-2 and "C" 1/4, both of which were formerly under control of the 12th Marines. One additional platoon from India Company was assigned to A-2. The Executive Officer with a small command group was assigned as defense coordinator of A-2. A major portion of the following month will be directed to improving and fortifying the position. In that the infantry units assigned to A-2 will be engaged in improving A-2 defenses and fortifications, daylight activities in proximity to A-2 will be conducted by the Battalion elements from A-3.

Supporting fires during this reporting period reflected a substantial improvement over the previous month.

Continual control problems were encountered as the result of intermittent net interference and jamming of radio frequencies assigned to the battalion and used by supporting arms.

Stringent control over ammunition expenditures was required to compensate for critical shortages of claymores, M-79 and mortar ammo and hand grenades were frequently NIS.

2. Significant Operations Conducted

a. 4Feb68 - India, Kilo and Mike Companies plus 3d Plt (-), "C" Company, 3d Tank Battalion and a command group swept the west toward Con Thien and link-up with "H" Company 2d Battalion, 1st Marines. At this time the tank platoon joined "H" Company and was chopped to the OPCON of 2d Battalion, 1st Marines. Sweeping elements returned to their respective defensive position without gaining enemy contact.

b. 7Feb68 - What appeared to be a routine security mission developed into the major engagement of the month. Contact was gained when 3d Plt, Company "K", moving east at YD 201719, had a meeting engagement with a unit of the NVA at extremely close distance. The element of surprise was with the NVA and 9 KIA's and 7 WIA's were immediately suffered. The 2d Plt, Company "K", located in close proximity, was immediately committed to assist and became engaged in close fighting near YD 201723. 18 KIA's and 10 WIA's were immediately suffered. The 1st Plt, Company "K" moved to assist the 2d Plt. Company "L" was deployed from A-3 into a blocking position at YD 194715. Mike Company, with a command group deployed from A-3 to assist Kilo Company. A defensive perimeter was established to the southwest of the contact, Kilo was disengaged, and finally drawn into the Mike Company perimeter for the night. Lima Company returned to A-3 at 2015H. At first light, Company "K", with a heavy section of tanks from A-2, conducted a tank/infantry attack. Enemy resistance was broken by 0830H. Casualties were secured and the battle area was policed. The entire action resulted in 30 KIA's and 30 WIA's suffered and 139 NVA KIA confirmed.

c. 10Feb68 - Lima and Mike Companies plus a command group swept to the southeast to clear and inspect the contact area of 7Feb68 in grids 1971, 2071, 2171, 2172. Upon arrival in the area the following was noted:

- (1) Hastily prepared positions accumulating approximately 250 to 300 NVA were found extending from YD 202718 to YD 211722.
- (2) Approximately 30 fighting holes were found at YD 198716.
- (3) Over 60 graves were spread throughout the area.
- (4) Two enemy kills were confirmed.
- (5) Expended and discarded equipment and ammo plus the extent of prepared positions indicated a possible battalion size unit was in contact with Kilo Company on 7Feb68.
- (6) Withdrawal routes were oriented to the south.
- (7) Further evidence indicated villagers vicinity YD 211711 treated wounded NVA soldiers.

Sweeping units returned to their separate defensive positions prior to last light.

d. 16Feb68 - India and Mike Companies plus a command group swept generally to the north and back thru grids 1772, 1872, 1873, 1874, 1974, 1975, 1875, 1775, 1774, and 1773. Movement into position to sweep through the area bound by the railroad tracks vicinity YD 180-760 and YD 192754 and grid 1775 was conducted during darkness. Contact in the sweep area was gained at approximately 0930 by India Company. Mike Company was moved in support of India Company and gun-resulting in 4 KIA's and 7 WIA's suffered and 25 NVA KIA's gained.

8. Logistics.

a. Supply

(1) General. During this reporting period the battalion has continued to build up the A-3 position. Daily resupply by helicopter is still the principle means of transportation to A-3. Resupply by motor vehicle was effected once, but trafficability of the road to A-3 is limited and it is not practical to resupply by this means.

During this reporting period it was necessary, due to limited resupply because of the weather and heavy expenditures of Class V, to use the 10 day emergency reserve of Class I and V.

(2) Class I - A daily resupply maintains the regular supply of Class I at a three to five day level. Water buffalos are lifted in and out primarily by helicopter.

(3) Class II - There still remains a critical shortage on:

All items of individual equipment
Bayonets
Gas masks and filters
Magazines - .45 and M-16
Binoculars
Halizone Tablets
Salt Tablets

(4) Class III - No problems encountered in keeping an adequate supply of POL on hand

(5) Class IV - Due to Operation Dye-Marker no problems have been encountered in obtaining Class IV items.

(6) Class V - The battalion supply of Class V is maintained at RA- 10 DOA.

b. Motor Transport

(1) The present status is considered adequate on M274A2's (mules) for current operations but our present status on M422A1 (mites) is below normal operational level. This battalion is without a jeep ambulance at this time. It has been deadlined at 3d Echelon maintenance for over 60 days.

(1) 11th Engineers have assisted by digging revetements for ammunition and landscaping the battalion area. MCB-5 provided a trencher which completed communication trenches throughout the A-3 position. 3d Engineers have provided road sweep and demolition personnel.

d. Maintenance Problems.

(1) A shortage still exists on carburetors and spark plugs for both the M42A1 and the M274A2; front and rear cables for mules and cable leads.

e. Ordinance.

(1) At the end of the month the battalion maintained the following status:

12. Intelligence.

The month of February was characterized by one battalion sized contact. One company sized contact and three successful night ambushes.

On 7Feb68, Kilo Company's 3d Platoon was moving east at YD 201719 when engaged at a distance of less than 50 meters with small arms, automatic weapons, machine-guns and Chicom grenades. Surprise was in favor of the enemy and the loss of the Platoon Commander and 7 KIA's in the first few minutes resulted in confusion. Kilo's second platoon moved from YD 205726 to help the third platoon but was engaged at YD 201723 with small arms, machine-guns and Chicom grenades. The NVA tried to assault through Kilo two's position in a fierce five minutes hand-to-hand fight, on the initial engagement. Kilo two's Platoon Commander and two radio operators were killed along with 28 others killed or wounded. An enemy machine gunner reportedly called "corpsman" during the initial engagement. The corpsman was killed when he went forward. The enemy was apparently selective in selecting targets as evidenced by the loss of two Platoon Commanders, five radio operators and three corpsmen. Lima Company deployed to YD 194715 in a blocking position and surprised the enemy trying to withdraw toward Phu Tho.

The next morning a coordinated tank-infantry attack broke the last enemy resistance which was a small unit left in place to cover the withdrawal of the larger force. Four of the NVA found later had detonated Chicoms against their own bodies. A sweep of the battle area revealed the enemy had used hastily prepared positions to accommodate 250-300 NVA. The positions were organized in depth between YD 202718 and YD 211722. They were apparently deployed to hit the infantry security or a reaction force reacting against a secondary attack along Route #1 or

The NVA used command detonated Chicoms along the trails in the initial ambush and most Marine casualties were as a result of Chicom grenades. The villagers on the western side of Route #1 gave aid to the NVA casualties and buried the bodies. One VC was found near a grave with an E-tool in his hand, M-16 rounds on his body and an M-16 laying nearby. The NVA routes of withdrawal were oriented to the south and west toward Phu Tho (YD 180698).

A total of 113 NVA KIA were confirmed for infantry and 26 were attributed to air and artillery. One RFG-2, seventeen individual and four crew served weapons were captured as a result of the action.

On 16Feb68, 3/3 moved into the southern DMZ area and began a sweep at first light of the 1875 and 1775 grid squares. At YD 178761, twenty NVA were spotted on line and moving south. The NVA wore green utilities, helmets and packs. Weapons could not be observed. India Company deployed to meet the enemy and heavy contact was made at YD 183758. The enemy constructed and camouflaged bunkers. Some bunkers covered the approaches from the railroad tracks and booby-trapped Chicoms and PH-10 mines protected the trails. Heavy undergrowth and trees provided good cover and camouflage for enemy snipers while somewhat negating the effects of LAAs, M-79's and M-26's.

Snipers in the bunkers and treeline covered the withdrawal of a larger portion of the NVA force. Sniper fire was accurate and deadly. Most friendly casualties were gunshot wounds in the upper body. Though no weapons were spotted, most sounded like carbines with only two or three AK-47's. The area is covered with bunkers and trenches, most of which are old and overgrown, but showed evidence of recent occupation.

On 17Feb68 the first of three successful night ambushes was sprung. Twenty-five NVA were seen in a column moving north across the trace. They were ambushed at YD 185737 resulting in seven NVA KIA. The escaping enemy was again ambushed at YD 185729 resulting in one POW. The remaining enemy were engaged three times on the south side of the trace with unknown results. The POW stated that they were in a MedEvac column and were returning to North Vietnam. While searching the area the following morning a second NVA POW was found and another NVA was shot and killed. The second successful ambush was set in at YD 190708 along a trail that continued north across the trace and south to Phu Tho. The enemy had just crossed a rice paddy and stream with a wooden bridge over it and were moving north on the trail when engaged. Eight NVA KIA were counted and two AK-47's were captured. One POW was taken but died of wounds before he could be evacuated. All captured gear was new.

A Company "K" ambush engaged an unknown size NVA unit at YD 197710 on 24Feb68 and counted six NVA KIA. A sweep of the area the next day resulted in the capture of one POW, five weapons and twelve packs. The POW said that he was in the 48th Regiment, 320th Division. He further stated that he was lost at the time of capture.

It was re-emphasized to the battalion during the month that the enemy retains the capability to mass a battalion size unit and prepare positions in as little as 12-18 hours. Evidence further supported a previous theory that a significant portion of the movement in AO is from south to north. Information further pointed to the frequent occupancy by the NVA of Phu Tho (YD 1769) and An Xa (YD 1775).

13. Communications.

a. General. In February the Communication Platoon operated the basic radio and wire communications systems necessary for the battalion's efficient operation. The most unusual occurrence was the establishment of a command group at A-2 which was mostly made up of communications. A new wire system was set there and a covered circuit capability between A-2 and A-3 and Dong Ha was established. Also, radio relay network was set up to accommodate telephone communications between A-2, A-3 and Dong Ha. An additional radio net, a conduct of fire net, was also set up at A-2 to coordinate fire support.

b. Training. There were no special communications schools/classes established during February, however, there was continued training of our new message center personnel. Several selected personnel were re-designated and retrained as radio operators because of the projected operator difficulties expected. New wiremen are getting extensive on the job training by setting in the new wire system at A-2.

c. Communication Equipment Status. Equipment status is good, perhaps the best its been in six months. The following combat essential items remain down:

- 1 - PRC-41
- 2 - PP 3240
- 1 - KY-8
- 1 - IRC-25
- 1 - MRC-83

d. Problems. Personnel problems will be resolved satisfactorily provided the influx of new radio operators continues as expected. No new BA-386 problems have arisen since the submission of a VER Crown Batteries. IRC-25 whip and tape antennas remain in great demand as do monoblocks for the E-451. The single greatest problem still is the lack of PRC-25 replacements for those designated Code "X".

14. Weather. The weather during the month of February was generally cold and damp. Precipitation consisted of a fine misty rain that was usually wind-blown. The morning fog was usually heavy enough to prevent aerial resupply or observation until 0900 or 1000. Only one or two days were sunny and warm. The remainder of the month was usually overcast.

Average high	66	Average wind	- 7 kilometers from NW.
Average low	60	Average visibility	4 miles
Precipitation	1.23 inches	Humidity	80%

15. Fire Support.

a. General. The February period was marked by much improved artillery support. The increased enemy activity saw a proportionate increase in artillery support. We made more use of scheduled preps and groups. On calls were plotted for all patrols and in most cases the observer made good use of them. Response time has improved immensely in this month and we are now cutting back on scheduled preps and beginning to rely more on "on calls".

Especially good support came from "C", 1/40. Especially poor support came from general support who on one occasion took 90 minutes to establish communications with an FO in the field for a mission and on another occasion took 45 minutes to refire a previously fired on call.

b. Problem Areas. At the present time "C", 1/40 has been assigned in direct support from the C-1 position which for the first time provides the battalion with a direct support battery that can fire north of the 74S grid line.
